Spring and fall overcoats, also heavy overcoats for sale at reasonable prices, by J. W. Martin.

The Chambersburg Herald says: Yesterday was a big day in Hagerstown. The town was ablaze with enthusiasm and every house was handsomely decorated on account of the meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic. Quite a creditable parade was made during the day. The Woodstock, Va. Guards carried off the most praise for their fine drilling.

The Committee on streets and sidewalks announce that they will establish the grade for paving main street this week, and earnestly request all owners of property who will have to grade or pave to do so at once, and, also to fill up and grade all alleyways with the pavement. A prompt compliance with this request will relieve the committee from having the work done. To those desiring to pave or repair pavements, good paving brick will be furnished at the kiln for $3.99 per thousand, and Carb brick for 44 cts. per foot.

Any information or assistance tending to the speedy completion of this work will be cheerfully given by the committee.

Trip to Hagerstown.

The Anderson Guards of this place, left here for Hagerstown last Wednesday, to be the guests of the Maryland Department of the Grand Army of the Republic. The G. A. R. is composed of ex-federal soldiers organized into what is called Posts and each post is officered and meets regularly for drill. While it is a military organization it has no political significance, its chief object being the education and support of the orphans of the soldiers who were killed during the war.

The Anderson Guards were met at the depot by Reno Post and a number of members from other posts, accompanied by the band of Wilson Post, and drum corps from Dushane and Wilson Post, also the Warren Light Infantry of Front Royal, Va., Pioneer Hook and Ladder Company, and the First Hose Fire Company with torches. The column was at once formed and marched through the principal streets to camp, nearly the whole population of Hagerstown being on the pavements and at the doors and windows to witness the parade. The camp was located just outside of town on the old fair grounds, there being over two hundred tents in position. On Thursday there was a grand parade through the principal streets of Hagerstown, after which there was a review at Camp Ross, witnessed by hundreds of spectators. On Friday fully 20,000 people assembled in the vicinity of Sharpsburg, 13 miles from Hagerstown, to celebrate the anniversary of the battle and do honor to those who fell on that field eighteen years ago. Owing to a collision on the Shenandoah Valley Railroad, by which, fortunately, no one was seriously injured, the Grand Army of the Republic and other organizations and visitors from Hagerstown were delayed several hours, and it was 2 o'clock before they arrived at Sharpsburg. The procession was then formed and proceeded to Antietam National Cemetery to witness the unveiling of a statue erected to the memory of the federal soldiers, nearly 5,000, who fell in that battle. At 2:25 p. m. the statue was unveiled amid the roar of artillery.

The monument is composed of Rhode Island granite, James G. Batterson, artist; cost $30,000. The statue is that of a private soldier at "parade rest," is 21 feet 6 inches high, 5 feet 6 inches across the breast, and weighs twenty tons; took six men nine months to erect the statue. Entire monument weighs 320 tons, and is composed of twenty five separate stones. The stone in the five corner had the accoutrement of the different branches of the service, in relief, and the following cut in: "Not for themselves, but for their country, September 17, 1862." The base is 21.6 square, composed of eight stones; the sub-base is 17 feet square, composed of four stones; the truncated base is composed of eight stones; the die course is four stones grooved and moulded, is eight feet high and is capped by an octagon base two feet thick and eight feet across, upon which the statue rests. The entire monument is 41 feet 6 inches high.

Our boys were most hospitably entertained by the G. A. R. and the boys in gray will long remember the kindness of the boys in blue, but while the soldiers were thus fraternizing at Hagerstown, Conkling was wailing the "bloody shirt" in New York with a quality which was simply diabolical.

I would like to speak of the growth and enterprise of Hagerstown but my letter is already too long. While in the city I visited the Globe Office where "Gruber's Almanack" was being printed. Dr. M. A. Barry formerly of this county, is now the publisher. He informed your correspondent that he is printing 144,000. The people of this county have a warm place in the heart of the Doctor, who showed many kindnesses to the boys as well as to the writer.

GOOD LEATHER.—All who are in want of good home-tanned calf and kipskins should call on or address H. G. Ott at the old grove stand in Woodstock, where you will find the cheapest and best skins in the market. He would ask the special attention of shoe makers and leather dealers to his large stock, as he will sell by the dozen or half dozen at Baltimore prices. A few reliable merchants in the county having a good leather trade, will be allowed a liberal commission to sell leather and buy in hides.

He takes no short cuts in tanning his leather, but has it taken through the old process, by that well known and experienced tanner, Robert R. Newman.

Gov. Vance of N. C. Col. Ellis of Va. Gen. Hamilton of Md. and others at Winchester on Saturday.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 21, '80.

Measrs. Editors:
We had the good fortune in company with quite a number of straight-out Shenandoahians to participate in the festivities at Winchester on last Saturday. We met at Middletown a strong delegation of 19th of May men, and were informed that they had on Friday night organized a club of ninety-nine members, and that out of a registered vote of 117 they would vote for the Democratic ticket, all but two or three.

It is worthy of remark, that among the Middletown delegation, with his blue Hancock badge, pinned to the lapel of his coat, was a youthful negro, who bore his honors in princely style. The negroes in Winchester were not successful in their attempt to divest him of his honors.

Upon our arrival in Winchester we found delegations from all quarters of the county of Frederick, different sections of Shenandoah, Clarke, Warren and Jefferson and Hardy counties W. Va. We had an opportunity to talk with representative men from all sections of the above mentioned counties and the information we received was of the most cheering, gladsome character.

The speaking began at 1 o'clock, at which time Col. John S. Barbour nominated for Congress in the 8th district, in a quiet, businesslike way addressed the large audience. His speech was pointed, practical and intensely democratic, and was received with plaudits of delight, after Col. Barbour concluded his speech, the magnificent specimen of a true man and life long democrat Gov. Hamilton of Md. for two hours held his audience, which had in the meantime very considerably increased, spell bound with his happy hints and a statesman like views and arraignment of the Republican party, for all that is evil and iniquitous. The portion of his speech devoted to the refutation of the argument of Mr. Conkling, recently made in New York City, was exceptionally fine and eloquent.

It remained, however, for Gov. Vance of N. C. to cap the climax and he was equal to the occasion, as the immense crowd abundantly testified in no unmistakable terms.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Saturday evening last Miss Bertha Edmings, a pupil of the Episcopal Female Institute, was fatally burnt by her clothing taking fire, and died the next morning at 11 o'clock. Miss Edmings, who was a daughter of Judge M. Edmings, of Weston, West Va., went up to her room, which was on the third floor, for some purpose at 7 o'clock. She took in her hand a kerosene oil lamp. After she had gotten in her room the chimney which had been insecurely fastened on the lamp, fell off which startled her and caused her to drop the lamp on the floor. She turned and ran out of the room, but some of the oil which had run out of the mouth of the lamp caught in the flame and set fire to her dress—a thin lawn. She flew along the hallway, down two long flights of steps, delaying the efforts of one of the young ladies who tried to stop her but could not on her way. When she reached the lower floor, Mr. Wheat having in the meantime heard her screams, met her and in an instant threw something around her and put out the flames.—Win. Times.

LIBERTY FURNACE, VA.

Mr. Editor.

Dear Sir,—For several weeks past the minds of the people of this neighborhood had been very much agitated. The Liberty Furnace Union S. S. determined to have a picnic, and as there never was anything of the kind here before it created no small amount of gossip. It was determined that Saturday, the 11th of Sept. should be our festival day. Invitations had been sent to the adjacent schools to be present and participate in the exercises of the day. Saturday dawned bright and fair at a very early hour, the people began to gather. They came in buggies, wagons, horseback and on foot, about 10 o'clock a. m. (Lutheran) school came in a body with its banner floating in the breeze and led by their venerable Supt. J. H. Dellinger. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. G. T. D. Collins followed by recitation by Miss Sue L. Lewis. This young lady had 604 verses committed to memory. I might here add that the recitation by Miss L.—occupied about 45 minutes in the presence of a crowded house yet she was not the least embarrassed. A prize was presented to Miss L.—for committing to memory, the largest number of verses during the past summer. The hour for dinner having arrived, we fell into line and led by J. Byron Sperrin, Marshal of the day we marched to the grove, where the table was graining with its load of good things. After partaking of refreshments the crowd gathered around the stand and were entertained with speaking by Rev. G. T. D. Collins and others. The singing was led by Prof. Ness and B. F. Coffman. It is supposed there were between four and five hundred people on the ground. We realized about $25 on that day, with which we will buy a new library for the school. Upon the whole, the day was spent very pleasantly and profitably, nothing occurred to mar the beauty of the day. I would here ask would it not be profitable to call a meeting of S. S. Supts. and officers in the county regard less of name or denomination to exchange views upon the mode of conducting S. S. or any other business connected with the cause. Let us hear from others on this subject. R. S. S.

DIED.
On Sept. 18th Mrs. M. C. Orndorff, wife of Martin Orndorff near Strasburg, aged 49 years, 11 mo. and 24 days.

On Sept. 18th Henry Stickle, son of Col. Daniel Stickle, at Cedar Creek, aged 18 years, 3 mo. and 27 days.

On Sept. 18th, at 10 o'clock, Robert Taylor, aged 23 years, 1 month and ten days. The death of Robert Taylor was a very sudden and terrible one. It is interesting to get on a reading train he fell under it and had his legs carried by the hindmost car.

There is less than a year has one family become extinct. Husband and wife married into eternity in this case. With a commentary on the shortness and uncertainty of human life. Truly, "In the midst of life we are in death."

Robert Taylor was a most respectable and remarkable young man. Exemplary, strictly honest, truthful, and possessing fine business tact, he had endeavored himself to the whole community in his home as a public accountant. Hence all mourned at his death as a great loss to the community and to the church of which he was a faithful member. The church of which he was a faithful member, several years ago, and adorned his profession by an excellent man. His death was peaceful and calm. He told those who asked him what were his feelings and prospects with regard to the future, that he was not prepared to enter, that he did not fear death, and that he was prepared to meet his Maker.
